International Social Science Journal

Vol. XXXIII (1981)

Subject and author index

Subjects

Africa, East, historical scholarship in, 667–74
Alienation theory and research, 523–56
Art, sociology of, and history, 611–23
Barbados, primary socio-economic data and structure of, 393–414
Communication, improbability of, 122–32
Communication theory, impact of media on, 91–8
Cultural values and social choices of technology, 447–65
Development monitoring service at local level, 82–90
Documents and data, demand and supply patterns in United Kingdom, 50–71
Economy and society, 330–50
Educational systems, sociology of, 261–84
European co-operation in social science documentation and information, 559–65
Geography, applied, rise of, 133–59
History
  and the sociology of art, 611–23
  as a social science, 596–610
  contribution to social science, 624–40
  of sociology, 248–59
  today, 641–9
Historical scholarship in East Africa, 667–74
Historiography, contemporary Soviet, 650–66
Human rights information, free flow of, 72–81
Hungary, primary socio-economic data structure of, 163–75
Indigenization, the call for, 189–97
Indonesia, information sources in, 183–4
Information sources in Singapore, Malaysia, the Philippines and Indonesia, 176–86
Innovative processes in social change, 227–47
International information system, towards, 10–49
Israel, primary socio-economic data structure of, 677–95
Jamaica, primary socio-economic data structure of, 393–414
Malaysia, information sources in, 178–80
Media, evolution of, impact on communication theory, 91–8
Migration, towards new paradigm of, 307–29
Minority groups and race relations, 351–73
Nuclear energy, case for, 481–94
Papua New Guinea, examples of technology assessment from, 495–507
Philippines, The, information sources in, 180–3
Press, 'Black', in South Africa, 99–121
Race relations and minority groups, 351–73
Religion, sociology of, 285–306
Science, technology and society, interaction between, 508–21
Self-reliance, technology policy for, 466–80
Singapore, information sources in, 176–8
Social change, innovative processes in, 227–47
Social impact of technological innovations, 431–46
Social science
  contribution of history to, 624–40
  history as a, 596–610
Social documentation and information
  European co-operation in, 559–65
  towards an international system of, 10–49
Social sciences in search of time, 583–95
Society and economy, 230–50
  science and technology, interaction between, 508–21
Socio-economic data structure of Barbados, Jamaica, Trinidad and Tobago, 393–414 of Hungary, 163–75
  of Israel, 677–95
Sociological theory, future of, 217–26
Sociology
  history of, 248–59
  new urban, 374–90
  of art, and history, 611–23
  of educational systems, 261–84
  of religion, 285–306

South Africa, 'Black' press in, 99–121
Soviet historiography, contemporary, 650–60
Technological innovations, social impact of, 431–46
Technology
  assessment and policy, 495–507
  policy for self-reliance, 466–80
  science and society, 508–21
  social choice of, 447–65
Trinidad and Tobago, primary socio-economic data structure of, 393-414
United Kingdom, demand and supply patterns for documents and data, 50–71
Urban sociology, 374–90

Authors

ABEL, Theodore. On the future of sociological theory, 217–26

ACKERMANN, Werner. Cultural values and social choice of technology, 447–65

ARCHER, Margaret. Educational systems, 261–84

ATAL, Yogesh. The call for indigenization, 189–200

BOUHDIBA, Abdelwahab. The social sciences in search of time, 583–95

CLUBB, Jerome. History as a social science, 596–610

ENNALS, Martin. Free flow of human rights information: the need for a systematic communications network, 72–81

ERNST, Dieter. Technology policy for self-reliance: some major issues, 466–80

FELICIANO, Gloria D. Principal sources of information in Singapore, Malaysia, the Philippines and Indonesia: a critical survey, 176–88

FENN, Richard. Religion, 285–306

GORANOV, Krastio. History and the sociology of art, 611–23

GREENE, J. E.; ROBB, Reive. National primary socio-economic data structures. IX: Barbados, Jamaica, Trinidad and Tobago, 393–416

HIMMELSTRAND, Ulf. Innovative processes in social change: theory, method and social practice, 227–47

HOBSBAWM, E. J. The contribution of history to social science, 624–40

KOMATSUZAKI, Seisuke. The impact on communication theory of the evolution of media, 91–8

KOPECKI, Kazimierz. The case for nuclear energy, 481–94

KUBAT, Daniel; HOFFMANN-NOWOTNY, Hans-Joachim. Migration: towards a new paradigm, 307–29

LEFORT, René. The 'Black' press in South Africa, 99–121

LUHMANN, Niklas. The improbability of communication, 122–32

MAKLER, Harry; SALES, Arnaud; SMELSER, Neil. Economy and society, 330–50

MORVA, T.; DRECHSLER, L.; HAJNAL, A. National primary socio-economic data structures. VIII: Hungary, 163–75

NEWCOMBE, Ken. Technology assessment and policy: examples from Papua New Guinea, 495–507

PHLIPPONNEAU, Michel. The rise of applied geography, 133–62

RAHMAN, A. The interaction between science, technology and society: historical and comparative perspectives, 508–22

REX, John. Race relations and minority groups: some convergences, 351–73

ROBERTS, Stephen A.; BRITTAIN, J. Michael. Demand and supply patterns for documents and data in the United Kingdom, 50–71

ROBERTSON, Andrew. Introduction: technological innovations and their social impacts, 431–46

ROMANO, Ruggiero. History today, 641–9

RÓZSA, György. European co-operation in social science information and documentation: a process of maturation, 559–65

SCOTT, Wolf. A development monitoring service at the local level, 82–90

SCHWEITZER, David. Alienation theory and research: trends, issues and priorities, 523–56

SICRON, Moshe. National primary socio-economic data structures. X. Israel, 677–98

SZACKI, Jerzy. Reflections on the history of sociology, 248–60

TISHKOV, Valery. Modern Soviet historiography, 650–66

VINOGRADOV, V. A. and others. Towards an international information system, 10–49

WALTON, John. The new urban sociology, 374–92

WANJOHI, N. Gatheru. Historical scholarship in the East African context, 667–76

© Unesco 1981. Imprimerie des Presses Universitaires de France, Vendôme

C30